CHARTER

of the

Town of St. George

Initial Charter Approved March 1989
1st Revision March, 1998
Amended November 6, 2007
Amended November 2, 2010
Amended March 14, 2011

Introduction

In 1987 the Town of St. George voted to form a Charter Commission for the purpose of developing a charter for our Town. The charter was promoted as a way to clarify and make improvements to the State laws which governed the operations of local government. This Charter Commission held its first meeting on September 29, 1987. After almost a year and a half of work, a charter tailored to the needs of the Town of St. George was finalized and presented to the voters. At the town meeting in 1989, on a vote of 337 YES and 84 NO, St. George took a step forward in local government by adopting its first charter.

Two years later, after working out some of the "bugs", some amendments were made to the original charter. One amendment addressed the election of one moderator prior to the opening of the polls with another moderator being elected at the beginning of an adjourned meeting being called back to order. This allowed for those voters in attendance to elect a moderator from those people present at the time. The second amendment dealt with voter authority. This allowed any voter the right to speak on any matter before the town meeting, being given at least two minutes to speak. The second amendment also provided for the rules of governing town meetings, as well as the rules dealing with the reconsideration of articles.

Ten years after the adoption of the original charter, the Selectpersons voted to form a committee to review the charter and report on the necessity of amendments or a revision. This committee recommended a revision and a new Charter Commission was formed to begin the work of revising our Charter.

This document is the result of the Charter Commission's work. Various aspects of the Charter were changed, most in keeping with local practice, and some with a look to again improving the operations of how we govern ourselves here in St. George. This Charter was approved at the March 1998 town meeting on a vote of 346 YES and 181 NO.
